Terry Towner is Baby Derby Winner—Sprague 2nd—Sharpe 3rd

Checks were mailed to 30 Winners in the Baby Derby Sponsored by Addison, Woodhull and Jasper Merchants and Addison Advertiser and Woodhull Sentinel—Curtain Rings Down on This Interesting Derby.

The name of Terry Towner will be engraved on the beautiful 30-inch high loving cup, symbolic of victory in the Baby Derby. A check for $150 has been mailed to Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Towner of Addison, parents of the handsome winner.

The winner of the $75 prize was Nancy Sprague, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sprague. Leo Sharpe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sharpe, was winner of the $50 prize.

Following the above winners were Yvonne Harris, Donna Preston and Jacquelyn Brabant. A complete list of the prize winners will be found elsewhere in the columns of this paper.

The Baby Derby has proved itself the most interesting competition ever launched in Addison. People just naturally take an interest in babies. This was proved by the piles of Baby Coupons as well as hundreds of renewals and new subscriptions to the Addison Advertiser and the Woodhull Sentinel and this means a broadened field for the advertisers using the columns of these newspapers in the future. Every new subscription has been taken in the Advertiser and Sentinel territories and hence benefits the advertiser.

The Addison, Jasper and Woodhull merchants, the Addison Advertiser and the Woodhull Sentinel managements and the Baby Derby management take this opportunity of thanking sincerely everyone who took part in the Baby Derby and also those who made this big enterprise the big success it has been with their loyal support. The Baby Derby has been enjoyed by everyone. It has been interesting for the folks in this vicinity to see the Derby office window display as well as through the columns of the Addison Advertiser and the Woodhull Sentinel, just what many of our local babies look like. It has been interesting to note how many beautiful babies there are here.

The curtain rings down on the Baby Derby with this issue of this paper. We hope you all have enjoyed this most interesting competition as much as we have in sponsoring and publicizing it. The Baby Derby was conducted for us by Mrs. Lydia Cook of the Keystone Company and we are certain that she has given everyone the same fair and impartial treatment which has marked her work in other sections of New York State.

The count of coupons and mileage in the Baby Derby was verified at the Addison National Bank prior to the mailing of the checks.

Deer Makes Appearance In Addison Garden

Four deer appeared in the eastern part of the village last week, much to the surprise of some of the amateur gardeners in that vicinity. The deer seem to know they are protected by law in this county, for they made no attempt to run away. And they did not make much of an inroad on the garden produce in the vicinity. This is the first time deer have been reported in the village limits in several months.

Woodhull Gas Well Workers Still Active

Lycoming had drilled to 1330 feet yesterday on the Earl Calkins farm in Woodhull. In addition officials of the company have ordered work started on the 12 inch pipe line which will be used to draw the gas from the well when it is completed.

The drillers struck a surface gas pocket at 1100 feet and are having trouble with the escaping gas. It is estimated there are over 2,000,000 feet of gas in the pocket and care must be taken with the drills to prevent fire or explosion.

The drillers have cut their drill from 14 inches and now have an eight inch casing which should speed up the drilling process.

A six inch pipe line has been laid to the Herrington discovery well and should be hooked up by the end of this week. Some difficulty was experienced with the securing rights of way but these have been nearly cleared so that the line can go through to the well, which has been lying dormant since it blew in several weeks ago.

The Moyer well has not been spudded in as yet, but all equipment is in place in preparation for activity. The Becker well is going down slowly and now is at the 300 feet level.

Monday Will Be Observed As Holiday

The sun was shining, the day was hot. A group of earnest individuals gathered in Philadelphia to sign a declaration of independence for the American colonies. Of that gathering came a conflict of several years standing and the freedom of the American colonies from the mother country, England. The exact day of that declaration and the final fixing of the signatures remains a matter of dispute among some of the historians, but we will celebrate it as Independence Day or Fourth of July. Its legal name is Independence Day.

This dispute marked the beginning of Democratic government throughout the world. France and Poland both sent their best to help us because of their belief in the spirit of democracy. And their efforts in this country brought about quicker reforms in their own countries.

We of New York have a great heritage in that first Independence day owing to the representatives from this state who attended the meeting and owing to the fact that some of the historic battles of that time were fought on New York state soil.

This is a day when the American flag should be flown. In many communities there will be special observances, parades, concerts and good times. Big cities will pour crowds into the country for the holiday week-end and many from the smaller towns will take the opportunity to go into the cities for good times or educational trips.

There will be no special observances in Addison. Most of the stores will take advantage of the holiday period to close and give the clerks a two days vacation.

Omelion Installs Xervac For Hair Treatment

Roy Omelion of the Sanitary Barber shop has installed a Crosley Xervac, which is an apparatus manufactured by the Crosley Radio Corporation for growing hair. Cueto, Cincinnati physician, invented the process and has tested it on [illegible]200 individuals with 96 per cent of them reporting an increase in hair.

Treatments are recommended twice weekly for best results. The treatment is simple and not complicated. A record of treatments and their results are kept on cards so that should it be found no results were being obtained, the treatment would stop and there would be no wasting of the patient's money.

Mr. Omelion and W. C. Fowler of the Sanitary Barber Shop have been instructed by a factory representative in the use and operation of the Xervac machine and either is equipped to give treatments.

CCC Boys Seriously Injured In Truck Crash Near Ithaca

Cadets Being Transferred From Addison Camp to Oxford Hit Low Bridge — Ten Receive Fractured Skulls, Bruises and Battered Bodies — Driver Absolved—Passing Motorists and Enrollees Give Aid.

By Stephen Maloney

The CCC camp at Addison, N. Y. sent from its midst a sad troop of cadets Friday, June 25, 1937. But not half as bad as their feelings as that which filled their hearts as they reached their destination in Oxford, N. Y. For out of the 41 men who left in the motor transport only 31 arrived safely. Ten of them lie unconscious, most of them seriously injured, in the Ithaca Memorial Hospital.

The motor convoy that left Addison some time around 11 A. M. on the above mentioned date, consisted of four trucks, the two ordinance department trucks leading the cavalcade and the two department of interior trucks following with the baggage cars loaded with some 40 cadets.

The third truck was the juggernaut on which the serious catastrophe occurred. Out of the 20 men who rode on the ill-fated vehicle only 10 escaped mercifully — none the worse for their experience.

Those escaping without injuries are as follows: Your correspondent Maloney, McCan, Meyers, Manzo, Damiano, Bruni, Norland, McMahon, McManus, Demassio, Iraggi, Krulinski.

The casualty list and the latest diagnosis is as follows:

Berd Nagel— Possible fracture of skull, deep gash on right side of forehead over the orb area, condition reported serious. He received the last rites of his church.

Hugh Meeghan—Fracture of collar bone, deep cut on lower lip. He also received last rites.

John Campbell— Contusions rear of scalp, possible fracture.

Anthony Noto—Severe shock and questionable condition of mind, appeared to be in a dazed mental state.

Andrew Kelly— Internal injuries, condition questionable.

Carl Deloro — Contusions rear of skull.

J. Popovitch— Severe lacerations rear of skull and chest plate, deep gash rear of left ear, gash on center of forehead.

John Missari—Shock and internal injuries as well as deep gash on rear of skull, fractured shoulder blade.

Al Benna — Lacerations rear of skull, shock.

Anthony Ermillio — Shock and weak spells, no hospitalization.

The accident occurred some two miles outside of Ithaca in the state park area when the truck drove under a railroad trestle at a speed of 12 miles an hour. A group of CCC boys working on road detail nearby shouted cheers to the passing caravan, attracted their attention. As the occupants of the trucks rose to return the friendly waves—unable to see the railroad trestle just around the bend. The low structure hit the men about the

LESSONS OF THE FLOOD

The narrowly averted flood which passed through Addison last week showed some unmistakable weaknesses in the newly built and partly finished dikes. Weaknesses that should be corrected before another dose of high water hits the village, if the money expended is to do any lasting good.

The dike on the north bank of Tuscarora Creek from the South Street bridge westward is not completed. There is a big sag in this bank which is so low the water only lacked about eight inches of flowing over the top of the dike and pouring into that section of the village. Had that occurred a tremendous amount of damage would have been done to the Addison High School building, for the dikes constructed below the school form walls for a ready-made artificial lake that would cover the entire school property.

The work of dredging the creek west of William Street was done in a poorly advised manner. Instead of removing the large gravel bar below the B & O. bridge, or at least cutting a large channel through that bar, the foreman merely took gravel from either side of this obstruction leaving the main portion squarely across the creek bed. When the high water rushed down the Tuscarora last week the expected happened—this bar acted as a break-water causing the current to deposit its load of sand, gravel and dirt at that point. The result is that the bar is now approximately twice as large as it was before the flood, and a few more doses of high water will raise this obstruction to a point where it will turn the creek crashing through the dike wall. This defect must be remedied speedily.

The same danger impending from an overflow of the creek dike above South street bridge, [illegible]s because of the unfinished river dike. Unless the embankment is extended upstream water from a river freshet will surely overflow the central part of the village from that source.

The ceek dikes did actually benefit residents of the village last week. Every public spirited citizen should rejoice that our fellow residents were saved that loss and inconvenience which a flood always occasions. At the same time we should accept the lesson taught by this near-flood and complete the project, illy-conducted though it may have been. It is to be hoped that the appropriation for this undertaking may not be longer delayed.

A MAN'S RIGHT TO WORK

There have been many amazing things about the big steel strike, but none more amazing than the confident manner in which the leader, Lewis, persuaded Governor Earle of Pennsylvania to command the owners of the Johnstown plant to shut down. This in spite of the fact thousands of men desired to continue their work for a living, and the further undenied allegation by the company that the plant was running nearly to capacity. The reason advanced for such an unparalleled action was the statement by Earle that he feared bloodshed if the mills continued to run in the face of the strike.

Thus did the New Deal Governor of Pennsylvania advance a new theory of the function of government.

A strike was in progress. Only a small minority of the workers employed were out on that strike. A large majority of the employes were working steadily earning a living for themselves and families. The strike was not a success because not enough employes joined the CIO to cripple production in the Johnstown plant, as Lewis had fully expected. In a situation like that past history has resulted in one of two things. The strikers recognized the fact they could not win and went back to their jobs, or the group remained recalcitrant for awhile and gradually drifted somewheres else to seek employment.

To most fair-minded persons it would seem that a man who has an honest job should be allowed to work at it. His labor is for sale, and when there is a market for that labor in a factory it is a tangible commodity to be exchanged for the wages of his hire. Whoever interferes with him and prevents him going into a factory to exchange his labor for wages is interfering with his right to earn a living and with his family's right to food and clothes. If a starving man tried to enter a grocery store with a ten-dollar bill in his hand with which to buy food, and a bystander blocked his entrance because the man professed a different political faith than the picketer, that interference would be no more real than the denying of a man the right to work at his own job. Yet Lewis and his gang have been preventing men from going to work and earning their bread. They have forcibly kept workers away from work because the CIO desires to become the gigantic governor of all labor and Lewis aspires to be not only the dictator of labor but the dictator of the U. S. as well.

By all the rights of a free man in a democratic country the workers who desire to work should be protected by the forces of the state in that right. If any man or group of men interferes with a worker going to a plant to exchange his labor for bread money, that worker is entitled to the protection afforded by organized law. When the Governor of Pennsylvania denies to non-striking employes the right to work, when he commanded the mill in which they worked should be shut-down, he was aiding the ugly forces of Communism which are closely allied to the CIO.

Of course John Lewis as head of the big union loaned a cold half-million dollars last fall to be used for the re-election of the President. Down through the coal mining regions of Pennsylvania there still stands huge signs which read, "Lewis says 'Vote Roosevelt'," pert reminders of the fact the CIO's chief was delivering the labor vote to Roosevelt in accordance with their deal. Lewis even reminded the President of the latter's obligation to him during the auto strike, an embarrassing jibe which Roosevelt allowed the unionist to get away with.

So it is little wonder when an irresponsible set like the New Dealers get in power that the fundamental rights of men are trodden under foot. Professing to be the friend of the forgotten man, the present Administration has actually been abridging the right of a man to labor and work out his own salvation.

ELKLAND'S FATE

For several days the industrial fate of our sister village, Elkland, Pa., has been hanging in the balance. While this is being written that fate is yet undecided, but before it appears in print the die will probably be cast.

Like many industries operated in smaller communities the Elkland Tannery has conducted an open shop. No man had to display a union card to get employment in the plant, and no man was assessed union dues by a set of feudal overlords that always run the unions. Then a few weeks ago organizers employed by the C. I. O. went to Elkland and began to exhort the workers to join the union. Various promises have been held out, such as big increases in pay envelopes, shorter hours of work and vacations with pay. Some employes of the tannery proved gullible and a certain number joined the union—just how many is a secret known only to the C. I. O., and that organization has not been telling. If they did tell their statements would be accepted at face value only, and the face value of C. I. O. statements in reliable quarters is computed by the same standard of values as that use[illegible] termining the worth of old German [illegible] much per ton.

Nor are the C. I. O. statements alone in disrepute, their contracts entered into with responsible parties have been found to be absolutely valueless. The General Motors Company signed contracts with the auto branch of Lewis' big union, contracts that were to outlaw labor disputes for a certain specified period of months. Yet inside of days only, strikes were being called here and there abong the different plants of General Motors. And these breaches of contract have moved the heads of some of the great steel companies to say flatly that they will not enter into a contract with the C. I. O. because the latter is an irresponsible party. Any man who will not keep his pledged word deserves the commendation of irresponsibility. Any organization which signs a contract and then fails to make its members live up to the terms is guilty of a breach of faith chargeable as an irresponsible party.

It has been stated that the owners of the Elkland Tannery have announced they will close their plant rather than be dictated to by John Lewis and men of his ilk who are associated with the pugnacious miner's big union. Doubtless they mean what they say. So far as we know the pro-Lewis Administration has not yet succeeded in enacting a law that can make a manufacturer continue to operate his plant against his will, though the Braintrusters may be thinking of that one. There is no present force to compel a manufacturer to continue running.

Elkland was one village which was a bright spot on the map during the past few years of industrial stagnation. Hundreds of employes of the Elkland Tannery were given steady work and continued to eat their three meals a day when the employes of less ably managed plants were tramping the streets looking for work, or were raking over leaves for the W. P. A. We do not know the exact circumstances but would hazard a guess that the owners of the tannery were not getting rich during that depression period when they kept their men at work and the families provided for. Possibly it would have been cheaper for them to have shut up shop for a time, but they did not.

Taken over the years American workers under the American system have been by far the best paid workers in the world. They have enjoyed more luxuries than the workers of all the rest of the world put together. There are few workers aware of the fact, but right now hundreds of thousands of American workers are being exploited to further the ambitions of one man—John L. Lewis—a man raised to financial opulence through the dues collected from the workers. It is to further the personal ambitions of this man Lewis that towns like Elkland are being invaded and organized by the C. I. O.

Many of the residents of Elkland are aware of the true meaning behind this attempt to organize the tannery workers. They see back of it

The Freshman Class in Collective Bargaining

By WALTER LIPPMANN

[illegible] say with [illegible] science that Mr. Girdler or Mr. Lewis is our man, and that some simple principle, such as the right to bargain collectively or the right to work, is the fundamental issue in the struggle. But I believe that we deceive ourselves when we take this view, and that such self-deception can lead to no useful results.

The major centers of the disturbance are the unorganized mass production industries of America. There is much industrial unrest elsewhere but in the main it may be said that this is the unrest which generally accompanies recovery from depression, though it is accentuated here and there by the prevailing distemper.

The trouble we are witnessing arises out of the attempt to organize these hitherto unorganized industries, and the reason why there is so much confusion and disorder is that very few men in these industries—in the management or among the workers—or among public officials, have had anything like adequate experience in operating a system of collective bargaining. The condition of these industries in respect to labor relations is very much like that which prevails in a politically backward state where neither the voters nor the public officials understand constitutional government or have acquired the habits of mind and character needed to make such a government work.

On the side of the workers it is manifest that the C. I. O. unions have suddenly acquired many more members than they have officers to lead them. Their situation and their behavior is like that of an army which has been deluged with enthusiastic recruits long before it has had time to train enough top sergeants and captains who can train the recruits. It takes time and experience to develop trade union officials, not merely the men whose names appear in headlines but the actual leaders of the rank and file inside the plants.

Naturally, a mass movement of this sort under improvised leaders, lacking traditions, discipline, and that sense of responsibility which can be acquired only by exercising responsibility, will be unruly. To belong to a union is a new experience for virtually all the workers in these industries, and there are not enough men available, not enough sober men whom they have learned to trust, to tell them what they can do and what they cannot do.

They would be helped grealy if men like Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Murphy, and Mr. Earle loved them not so much but more wisely. For what these workers need most of all in these workers need most of all in their difficult apprenticeship in labor unionism is the sense that their friends are good enough friends to have the courage and the prudence to restrain their excesses. The movement led by the C. I. O. badly needs to be slowed down for its own good. In no other way can it hope to have the time to learn this new art of collective bargaining.

And if the President is a real friend of labor, not merely one of those romantic upper class amateurs who mislead the labor movement by condoning and idealizing its vices, he will make these raw workers feel that his influence is not merely friendly but that it is firm and restraining as well.

On the side of management much the same condition prevails. Very few of the great captains of industry, and very few of their subordinates down to the foremen, have ever had real experience in collective bargaining. On the contrary, they have a tradition reaching back to pioneer days that collective bargaining with labor unions is inherently evil, at most something to be accepted as a necessary evil.

How many captains of industry know personally the leaders of labor as they know their competitors, their customers, their bankers, their lawyers? Very few. Mr. Girdler has never even met Mr. Lewis. Has he ever met Mr. Green? I do not know whether he has or not but I do know that no one can make wise decisions and conduct large affairs effectively who will not take the trouble to become thoroughly acquainted with the men who, whether he likes them or not, are important in the world he lives in. We talk a lot about class feeling these days, and no one deplores it more than I do. But in all fairness let us have the common sense to recognize that when employers fail to establish a personal relationship with the leaders of labor, when they hold them at arms length and talk about not "recognizing" them, they are doing much to create that very class feeling which they fear.

If we are not to have class division in America, then the quicker the employers remove the class barriers, and begin to acquire the habit of taking lunch with labor leaders and of going to the movies with them, the better for all concerned. For collective bargaining is not something which can be made to work by formal statements drawn up oy lawyers and press agents. It requires that continuing and developing human relationship through which alone men with different interests learn to lay aside their suspicions and learn to trust one another.

That, it seems to me, is what the wiser business men ought at this time to be telling their more excitable and bellicose colleagues. For the employers like the newly organized workers are in desperate need of discipline and of education. They are in a situation they have never been trained to deal with and they are finding, as Samuel Butler once said, that "Life is like playing a violin solo in public and learning the instrument as one goes on."

The colors blue, green, and violet soothe the eyes and nerves because they reflect little light, but yellows and reds have an opposite effect.

Two Governors' Action Seen as Favoring CIO

By MARK SULLIVAN

The thoughtful minds of America are busy analyzing the latest strike developments, trying to understand their bearing on America's future. For those who have not access to the facts nor time to study them help may be given by stating some of the essential facts detached from the whole. The merits of the controversy as a whole are not here dwelt upon.

An appropriate beginning is the telephone messages sent by Mr. John L. Lewis to Secretary of Labor Perkins and to Governor Davey of Ohio preceding the sending of state troops to Youngstown. The exact words of the messages are not available. Mr. Lewis himself described them to newspaper men. He said that he had given Miss Perkins and Governor Davey the same message. In part, he said:

"Somewhere in this nation tonight there must be somebody with power to prevent this contemplated butchery of our men in the steel districts tomorrow."

Substantially the same message was embodied in a telegram sent to President Roosevelt by three C. I. O. heads in Youngstown: "Any attempt to open the gates will automatically bring terrific violence and bloodshed."

Now if there was to be "contemplated butchery," as Mr. Lewis put it, who was contemplating it? And if there was going to be "terrific violence and bloodshed," as it was put by the three C. I. O. heads, who was going to commit it?

Was it the workers who wished to resume work in the plants? No—under no condition would they commit violence except possibly in resistence to violence by others. Was it the police? No, they would use violence only to suppress violence begun by somebody else. Was it the citizens who were being enlisted to [illegible] the police? No, they were in the same position as the police.

Who, then, was it that "contemplated butchery"? Who was it that was going to "bring terrific violence and bloodshed"?

While our search for the answer must rely upon newspaper dispatches, necessarily written hastily it seems clear that the "butchery," the 'terrific violence and bloodshed' was going to be brought by Mr. Lewis and C I O. According to dispatches, Mr. Lewis's C I O was bringing some thousands of members into Youngstown from near-by towns. They were coming for the purpose of preventing non-strikers from entering the plants, and they were going to do it by violence. They were coming to prevent the opening of the plants, and to do it by violence.

Follow the sequence of events one step farther. The threats—perhaps we should call them predictions of violence—contained in the message of Mr. Lewis to Secretary Perkins and Governor Davey, and the message of the C. I. O. heads to President Roosevelt—these threats brought state troops.

Independence Day 1937

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

With a spirit of reverence, as well as of patriotism, America observes this year the 161st anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

At the same time it commemorates the 150th anniversary of the United States Constitution

Between these two celebrations there is a close relationship. Together they commemorate the fact that our nation was created and constituted the Land of Freedom.

It was the Declaration of Independence that proclaimed to the world that all men are created free and equal, that they are endowed with certain inalienable rights, that to secure these rights governments are instituted.

It was the Constitution of the United States that gave those principles strength and permanence.

Without that Charter of Liberties, the freedom won by the courage and the self-sacrifice of our fathers would have perished.

To the men who, through those two historic documents, gave substance to our national ideals, all Americans owe a debt of gratitude today.

To realize what they established for us, it is necessary only to consider the growth in area, in prestige and in the well-being of its people that America has achieved.

To realize from what they protected us, it is necessary only to observe the repression of human rights and of the human spirit which today afflicts so many nations abroad.

Independence Day, 1937, thus becomes a dual anniversary. It commemorates our birth as a nation, and it demonstrates that only through the power of human liberty and through government instituted to secure such freedom, can a country progress and endure.

On us rests the responsibility of keeping that spirit alive.

Now what was the effect of the coming of the troops? It was to do the thing that Mr. Lewis and C. I. O. wanted done. It was to prevent the opening of plants. It was to enable Mr. Lewis and C. I. O. to enforce their will. If proof of this is needed, it is to be found in the following extract from an Associated Press despatch sent after the troops arrived:

"'Easy now, you mugs,' a National Guard officer admonished the strikers. 'We're not here to break the picket lines. We're here to see to it that nobody goes to work.'

"'We've won the strike!" was the unionists' cry.

"'We'll have a signed contract in our pockets before the first of next week,' Charles Fagan, a district leader, told 500 cheering C. I. O. men."

What does this boil down to? Let us refrain from criticizing the troops for keeping the plants closed, or Governor Davey for sending the troops. Probably that had to be. Bloodshed was threatened, and perhaps one appropriate way of averting it was to keep the plants closed.

Yet what does it boil down to? Mr. Lewis and C. I. O want the plants closed. To accomplish this they threaten violence and begin to practice violence. Thereupon the Governor of the state, after advising with the President of the United States, sends troops. The troops do what C. I. O. wanted done, they keep the plants closed.

The effect of the troops is not directed against those who threatened the violence and began it, that is the C. I. O. It is directed against the victims of the "contemplated butchery." It is directed against the non-striking workers who wanted to continue to work in the plants; it is directed against the police who would have protected the non-striking workers, and against the citizens of the community.

This is the pattern that is duplicated everywhere. In Pennsylvania, C. I. O. undertakes to close the Bethlehem steel plant at Johnstown by preventing non-striking workers from entering. To help in this purpose, C. I. O announces that 40,000 of its members are going to march into Johnstown from near-by coal fields. Of this threat, the Johnstown sheriff gives notice to Governor Earle and asks for state troops. Thereupon Governor Earle puts Johnstown under partial military [illegible]w, and at the same time closes [illegible]e plant. That is, Governor Earle, by use of his authority and of state troops, does what C. I. O. wants done, what C. I. O. was about to do by violence. Governor Earle requested Mr. Lewis to call off the march of 40,000 outsiders into Johnstown. Mr. Lewis called it off. He could well afford to. He had won what he wanted; he had won by use of violence and threat of more violence.

The heart of the situation is made clear by a statement of Governor Earle, quoted in a newspaper dispatch:

"Workers in the plant will be evacuated; if they remained there it might mean a terrible massacre."

Massacre of whom? By whom? The workers in the plant were not going to massacre each other. While inside the plant they couldn't massacre anybody else, even if they were disposed to, of which there was no intimation. The massacre, if there was going to be one, would be massacre by Mr. Lewis's C. I. O. True, Governor Earle prevents the massacre. He prevents it by making it unnecessary. He does, by use of state troops, what Mr. Lewis's C. I. O. was going to do by violence.

This dispatch cannot cover all the aspects of the strikes. No one dispatch can. The present dispatch aims to make clear only one phase, namely, as it is put in a phrase from a "New York Times" editorial: "The armed power of the state is invoked to furnish the shock troops for illegal picketing.

Scholastic Athletes Average 66 Per Cent Victories in 1937

Season Closing with Graduation One of Most Successful — Basketball and Baseball Major Sports in High School—Hewson Closes Career With Good Year — Leaves Several Veterans for Incoming Coach.

By Maynard B. Allen

Addison High School athletes had a very successful season during the 1936 and '37 term. Their march of victory included an undefeated win in the Steuben County Class B baseball league, the mythical girls' championship of the county, runner up in the Class B basketball league, with a team that defeated every team it played at least once and numbered the Knoxville High School varsity among its two-time victims.

The high school varsity basketball team started the season with only two veterans, Orr and Gardner, two fresmmen, Heidrick and Thomson, and one sophomore, Perkins, constituted the starting quintet. This combination had tough sledding winning only one of their first eight starts. At midyear Hargrave became eligible and after winning over the league leaders the squad started to click winning seven out of nine games.

Only two men of a squad of 19 are lost for the next season although another graduate expects to take a P. G. course. Hargrave and Gardner, the two who will be absent from next year's team, with Thomson, Heidrick, Orr, Hopper, Triches, Perkins, J. Dominick, Oakden, Aldrich, Kane, Auringer, Lyons, H. Heidrick, Fritz, Coon, Rice, L. Dominick and Bovee completed the Maroon and Gray varsity teams.

The girls, who added another year as champs of the county feminine hoopsters, have a large graduating list and two more losses due to playing the limit. Burlingame, J. Manson, Space, Crawford, Dascomb and Phillips are all lost although the last four are eligible if they return for post graduate work.

A fighting reserve consisting of Little, Perry, Wright, M. Whitmore, J. Whitmore, B. Whitmore, Beers, Brennan, N. Manson, Sherwood, Docherty and Colburn, should make the '38 team even better than this year's sextet.

A summary of the basketball games show the boys' varsity won eight, lost eight and tied one. The girls' varsity won six and lost one, while the boys' seconds won 13 and lost 5, total of all teams won 27 and lost 14, a percentage of 66 per cent.

The baseball team put the finishing touches to a good season by taking an undefeated position of the Class B title. The only game lost was a non-league game with Elkland at the beginning of the season, that being a close 9 to 8 defeat.

Led by Joe Dominick, Fran Heidrick, Mike Triches and Paul Thomson the team packed plenty of offensive punch as the two Hammondsport games showed 16 to 7 and 15 to 9. Hargrave was without doubt the best first baseman in the league as was Heidrick as an infielder and Root as a catcher. Heidrick and Thomson are the best prospects to come up in years, both being freshmen. A perfect season on the mound goes to Johnny Smith with four league wins and no defeats.

Hargrave at first will be the only main loss to the team. His place will be taken by Perkins, 1936 first baseman, out this year on account of injuries. Two others graduated but plan to return next year, both being eligible. They are Smith and J. Dominick.

This year's lineup follows: Smith, L. Dominick, Thomson, pitchers; Root, catcher; Hargrave, first; Orr, second; F. Heidrick, short; Triches, third; J. Dominick, Lyons, Croft, outfield and Kane as an extra third-baseman. Other substitutes are Oakden, Horey, Bovee, Crawford, Fritz, Stiker and Rice.

Addison Guest Once Writer of Wide Reputation

Harry L. Allyn of the Blue Lantern Inn, Annapolis, Md., is spending a month with his sister, Mrs. Edith Stephens. Asked by the editor if he noticed many changes in the old town of late he answered in the negative. "But I surely do miss a lot of old faces from Addison", he said.

Asked if that prevented him from enjoying his annual visits here, Mr. Allyn promptly assured it did not. "There is a tie that binds you to the dirt you were born in" he said.

Mr. Allyn after turning his hand to many means of livelihood has settled down as a gentleman farmer in a land where gentlemen farmers are the rule instead of the exception. He works every foot of a twenty-acre farm—from the shady side of the front porch which extends clear around his spacious home. Yet it is not the story of this idyllic farm life, nor his more strenuous days in the restaurant business which interest the writer. Rather does the newspaper man cling to his words about what he has written, for Mr. Allyn has been a creative writer, and one who can create fiction which makes pen and ink men and women live and act and love, knows life in its true sense and proportions.

A prolific writer when inclined to turn his hand to the profession, Mr. Allyn wrote and sold more than 100 short stories in the period from 1907 to 1911. That they were distinctive stories is attested by the face the publishers of Blue Book, Red Book, Everybody's Magazine and Delineator clamored for the "Brain Children" of his pen. For several years he wrote a monthly article for publishers on contract, which was entitled "Spare Moments". This consisted of a series of letters from a self-made farmer to his son in Columbia University.

Asked to name his most successful story published, Mr. Allyn hesitated for some time. Then he mentioned "The Cruise of the Peaceful Pirates", as having been a story which brought him commendation from widespread sources. This was published in Everybody's and illustrated by a nationally known artist of the day. The author still has the original paintings made for this story.

Mr. Allyn admitted he once wrote a book-length story, but hastened to add that it was never published. Written some 25 years ago the publishers to whom it was submitted evidently thought it a little too daring to present the public. But that does not worry Mr. Allyn. He has lost the urge to write, and not needing the cash income from his pen is content to rest on his many laurels and let the younger generation rejoice over stories accepted, and sigh over their rejection slips. As for him—plenty of time to think, plenty of time to read all the best books and a few of the dull ones, plenty of time to work that twenty-acre farm—from the front porch.

CALL IT WHAT YOU WISH

The critics of the neutrality bill call it "selfish nationalism". No matter what they call it, it is an improvement over the old-style stuff which kept the United States on the brink of war when we trailed the insane nations of Europe who pride themselves on their "internationalism".

Railways Plan Campaign To End Trespassing

Pointing out that illegal train riding and other trespassing on railroad property constitutes one of the major problems facing the rail carriers, the Safety Section of the Association of American Railroads, at its annual meeting in St. Louis recently, announced plans for an intensive nation-wide campaign to reduce the unnecessary loss of life that results from this cause.

In 1936, the report explains, 2,738 illegal train riders or other trespassers on railroad property lost their lives, an increase of 26 compared with 1935, and a gain of 84 over 1934.

Of the number killed in 1936, 2,402 were adults, 226 were from 14 to 21 years of age, and 110 were less than 14 years of age. In the past ten years 25,480 trespassers have lost their lives, of which 21,357 were adults and the remainder were less than 21 years of age.

In the last six months of 1936 more than 2,000,000 illegal train riders or trespassers were removed from trains, prevented from getting on trains, or ejected from railroad premises but not arrested, on 79 of the principal railroads of the country.

HOW MUCH TIME DO YOU SAVE WHEN YOU SPEED?

Two cars made a seven-mile test trip to the Loop and proved, police said, "the driver who takes chances to gain time is absolutely wrong".

Both set out from the same place for the same destination at the same time. One jumped ahead at traffic signals, cut out and around other cars and went as fast as conditions permitted. The other observed all rules and careful driving.

The fast car reached the goal in 23 minutes. The other pulled up behind two minutes later.

The Rambler has been preaching against parking and visiting in Main street and was guilty of this offense last week, much to his chagrin and the amusement of Chief of Police Elmer Bovee, who kidded him about it.

—o—

Saw a headline in a paper recently, "Elephants are Happier When Wallowing in Mud" and that reminded me of some people.

—o—

The Chief of Police of my home town has issued a warning to people going away for the summer. He says, "Don't leave your home until all doors and windows are locked, then telephone police and tell them you are going and when you will return, stop deliveries of mail, papers and the like for a cluttered porch is an invitation to break in, remove all valuables, don't leave notes saying you are away, tell neighbors to watch suspicious characters about the place.

—o—

I have not expressed much of an opinion about this here WPA here, but I feel that I should. Why is it that the section around the new dike was filled in near the bank and in the rear of many West Main street stores friendly to the administrators of the fund here, but no fill has been provided in the places near this office? Water seeps in, junk is being thrown into the holes and it is unhealthy and unsightly. In the meantime some of our neighbors have gardens on their filled-in lots.

—o—

Many times I hear the remark, "Be careful of him, he is a newspaper man". Makes me feel as though I had the plague or something. Some of those who say it should be thankful I don't print some of the things I know about them. I'm really not dangerous but just an ordinary fellow trying to earn a week's pay.

—o—

Some of you ladies who read this column might be interested in a few things I learned recently. Hold tomatoes over a flame to peel the skin quickly, a tablespoon of peanut butter will revive cream soups that have been burned, ice cream can be baked with a meringue of beaten whites of eggs for two minutes for a new way to serve ice cream and parboiling vegetables 10 or 15 minutes before baking them will cut the baking time one-half hour.

—o—

I wonder what all the graduates are thinking about?

—o—

This is camping and outdoor time. Don't go swimming alone or after a heavy meal, don't stay in sun over 20 minutes at a time when trying to get sunburned, burning the body defeats the aims for which you are trying to get the sun, drive carefully on the highway but have a good time.

—o—

Not so many of the Addison and vicinity young couples took advantage of the moon and June, etc., to get married this year.

—o—

Rain has a tendency to increase the floating population of Addison. Several of the rural residents cannot work on their farms in the rainy season and so the folks come to town for the day. And the rains of the past week sure have held up their work.

—o—

During the fair weather Mr. Mac Dowell has placed summer furniture outside his store for display. And it has made a wonderful lounging place for people. I have noticed as many as six or eight occupying the furniture on extremely nice afternoons, viewing Main St.

The glorious Fourth of July which marks an anniversary in American Independence will be here Sunday. It is a holiday week-end also. And the papers Monday and Tuesday morning will be filled with a long list of fire cracker and motor car accidents. Will you be one of these? Of course you say, "No". At the present rate of accidents one of three week-enders is due for an accident. Use care, please.

—o—

I hate to be a kill joy but sometimes I almost wish it would rain on these holidays, just to keep people off the streets and highways. When you have seen many week-end accidents and written about them, it sort of makes you wish for something outside of humanity itself to stop these needless deaths and maimings.

—o—

Addison people regretfully say "goodbye" to the Rev. J. Edward McKay who has been acting as administrator in St. Catherine's Church and extend a hearty welcome to the Rev. Patrick Kelly, the new pastor.

—o—

Dr. Phillip O'Hanlon died in Brooklyn last week. To most of you that won't mean much. But it was Dr. O'Hanlon who was asked "Is there a Santa Claus?" by his daughter Virginia and he told her to write to the New York Sun and if they said there was a Santa Claus it must be so. So she wrote and Francis Church answered in an editorial which is now a classic and which we printed at Christmas time.

That's all.

Thoughts Before the Glorious July Fourth

The "Glorious Fourth" can be just as glorious as we choose to make it. This year the long week-end created by the holiday will intensify the hazards which the Fourth always produces. The watchword should be, "Take care"!

Independence Day celebrates the independence of the nation. The coming week-end will demonstrate vividly the modern independence of people. Great streams of traffic pouring over the highways will show how essential are mutual regard and courtesy among drivers. Fireworks will demonstrate it too. A "firecracker thrown by another" is, according to the National Conservation Bureau, the greatest single cause of the tremendous number of fireworks accidents every Fourth of July. At the beaches and lakes, imprudent swimmers will again remind us that human life must be risked to save the life of a drowning person.

Reasonable care divides a happy holiday from the tragedies which mar it. Reasonable care will insure you, your family and the other fellow against mishap. For instance:

If you drive—see that your car is in good mechanical condition. Check tires, lights, brakes, steering mechanism, windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, horn. Drive carefully, at a reasonable speed. Observe the rules and courtesies of the road.

If you must use fireworks—give yourself plenty of space. Keep away from children and animals and buildings. Throw firecrackers away from people and inflammable materials, not at them. Never hold an exploding firecracker, nor set them off under a bottle or can. Cauterize the smallest wound immediately—tetanus poisoning works fast and kills.

If you go swimming—swim in safe and protected places. Beware of strong tides and currents. Know your limits as a swimmer. Wait two hours after eating. Avoid shallow places.

Rhubarb Beetles

R. D. inquires if there is a beetle that damages rhubarb.

Dr. R. W. Leiby of the entomology department answers: "Rhubarb plants in gardens often show some decay caused by the feeding of a snout-nosed beetle known as the rhubarb curculio. This beetle is now active.

"Examination of the rhubarb plants often reveals this black insect, which is about one-half inch long and has a yellowish powder on its body.

"The beetle also feeds on dock and thistle, and it is well to destroy such plants that grow near a rhubarb planting. This and handpicking of the beetle are the only ways to control the insect".

Cutting Hay

S. F. inquires about the best time for a dairyman to cut hay. "At what stage should mixed hay be cut?"

Professor G. H. Serviss of the agronomy department gives the following recommendations:

Timothy: Cut at the early bloom stage; that is, when most heads are in bloom at the tip ends.

Clover: The ideal time to cut clover is at two-thirds bloom; by all means the cutting of clover should be finished by the time it reaches full bloom.

Alfalfa: To maintain the stand, allow alfalfa to reach the full bloom stage once a year. Other cuttings should be made in early bloom. When feeding quality is more important than maximum tonnage and life of the stand, all cuttings may be made at the early bloom stage.

Mixed hay: Mixed hay should be cut when the legume wich is most abundant is at the proper stage.

GOES BLIND DAILY

For two hours a day, 27-year-old George Mansell of Sunbury, is a blind man.

Specialists are baffled. They have told him that he is a victim of a mysterious tropical disease—yet he has never been abroad.

For eight years he has lived under this shadow.

While he was sitting alone in his bedroom during a bout of blindness his sister, with whom he lives, told of his heroic struggle against disease.

It prevents him from getting regular work. He cannot draw the dole.

Mrs. Jones said: "It started soon after he was discharged from the army—from neurasthenia, the doctors said.

"The pupils of his eyes will gradually turn upward and disappear, as though the strings at the back of them were broken.

"After two hours his sight will be normal again".

THE LEGACY

Every baby born in the United States in 1936 inherited a debt of $420—his or her share of the public debt, federal, state and local. By the time Junior or Sister finally works off this debt with interest the payment will have been $840. This stands as a first mortgage on the property the child might hold now or subsequently accumulate or upon the earnings which he will make when he starts to work.

The Rev. Patrick Kelly Becomes Pastor of St. Catherine's Church

Takes Place Made Vacant Through Illness of Father Moffett—The Rev. J. Edward McKay, Administrator, Leaves to Become Assistant Pastor in Elmira.

The Rev. Patrick A. Kelly is now pastor of St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Church in this village. He takes the place made vacant by the Rev. J. Edward McKay who has been acting as administrator and who has been transferred to St. Mary's in Elmira.

The Rev. McKay came to Addison when the Rev. Francis Moffett became ill in February, and has been acting as administrator since that time. While here he has been active in the church associations and under his administration three successful parties have been held which netted $150 toward the church debt. He leaves here with the best wishes of a large circle of friends and goes as assistant pastor to Elmira. He left Saturday morning for his new charge.

The Rev. Kelly was formally installed as pastor here Thursday night by a representative of the Bishop's office, the Rev. Edmund A. Rawlinson in the presence of Father McKay and trustees August Vona and Thomas Kane, Sr.

Father Kelly was born in Medina but moved to Rochester when a youth and attended school there. His primary education was received in St. Mary's school in Rochester and in St. Andrew's Seminary and his clerical studies were in St. Bernard's seminary, all in Rochester.

Upon completion of his seminary work he was ordained by Archbishop Thomas F. Hickey, Bishop of Rochester July 12, 1915. His first charge was in Mt. Carmel parish, Rochester, where he worked among the Italian people for several months and administerd a school of 600 people.

The Rev. Kelly was then transferred to Penn Yan where he served in St. Michael's Church for five years. Upon completion of his ministrations there he went to Owego where he was assistant pastor in St. Patrick's Church. Here also he served five years. He was held in high esteem by the parishioners in both of the above place who regretted his leaving.

Father Kelly then went to Corpus Christi parish in Rochester where he served for two years and then served under the priest who installed him, Father Rawlinson in St. Patrick's Church, Corning.

The pastorates of churches in Campbell and Bradford were his next charges and later he went to St. Joseph's Church in Hammondsport where he has served for the past eight years. His work there won him favorable comment from Catholics and non-Catholics alike, especially during the floods of July 1935. At that time both parish house and church were damaged. He also served a church in Prattsburg. It was during the floods that he received injuries.

He comes to this village with the good wishes of his former parishioners. His place is being taken by the Rev. William Canaan.

Miss Geraldine Pepper will be the guest of relatives in Albany the first two weeks in July.

Information You Should Know Concerning Old Age Benefits

Do you know:

That you may receive a monthly Old-Age Retirement benefit for life from the Government at the age of 65 if you have been employed at least one day in the last five different calendar years after 1936 in an employment covered by the Social Security Act and if your wages from such employment total $2,000.

That you do not have to be a citizen of the United States in order to qualify for benefits under the Old-Age Benefits provision.

That employees of labor unions including paid officers, organizers, business agents, clerks and other employees of such organizations are eligible under the Old-Age Benefits.

That while the income of a person who is self employed does not count toward Federal Old-Age Benefits, he will be entitled to Old-Age benefits when he becomes employed under requirements of the Act.

That you are entitled to Federal Old-Age benefits even though your company is now providing retirement annuities.

That if you are a salesman on a commission basis, you are an employee under the provisions of the Old-Age Act.

That if you have only worked two or three years in a covered employment and retired before fulfillment of the requirements of one day or month in some five different years during which you have earned at least $2,000, you may still obtain a lump-sum payment at age 65.

That if you are a cook, maid, laundress, furnace man, gardner or chauffeur working in houses, clubs, hotels or offices you are not within the exception of domestic service and are eligible for benefits under the Old-Age Benefits.

That if the remuneration for employment is in any form other than cash, the cash value of such remuneration will be considered as wages.

That if you are a stenographer, clerk, receptionist, or employee of a dentist, doctor, lawyer or professional in part or full time, you are under the Old-Age Benefit Act.

That wages of a boy or girl in high school working Saturdays or Sundays in covered employment are included under the Old-Age Benefits.

That if you reach the age of 65 before your total wages for employment after December 31, 1936 amount to $2,000, you may file a claim for lump-sum payment.

That you may apply and secure a Social Security Account Number even though you have passed the age of 65. This, however, will not qualify you for Benefits under the Social Security Act. It is merely an aid to you and to the State Unemployment Compensation Bureau.

That if you should die before reaching the age of 65, your estate will receive a death benefit equal to 3½% of your total wages for services after Dec. 31, 1936 in an included employment.

That on claims of less than $100 it is not necessary to pay a notary fee. The signature of the claimant may be witnessed by two disinterested witnesses or by any government official.

That receipt of a lump-sum payment will not disqualify you from receiving aid on the State Old-Age Assistance Plan if need for assistance is established under state laws.

That you can still secure and fill out an SS-5 form for a Social Security account number if you have not already done so. Forms may be secured from the post office and a Social Security account number will then be sent to you.

That your Social Security account number should be given to your employer for record purposes.

That non-possession of Social Security account number is not a bar to getting a job but if you have not an account number, you should apply for one immediately upon becoming an employee in a covered industry.

That employers must file reports even if they have only one employee.

That an employer must file an SS-5 form for an employee when he finds that an employee has not applied for an account number.

That employers, at the close of each month, must send tax reports with respect to all taxable wages to the Bureau of Internal Revenue together with a report on SS-1 forms reporting such taxes.

That the Bureau of Internal Revenue outlines rules and regulations on tax procedure under Title VIII of the Social Security Act.

Be Careful When Storing Garments

"It's time to open the trunk or chest in the attic and to pack away winter garments that will not be needed until fall", says Miss Grace Griswold of the New York State College of Agriculture. Two kinds of clothes moths and at least five different kinds of carpet beetles are dangerous to wardrobes in New York State.

"Articles worth keeping should be packed in a trunk or chest where they can receive proper care. An old-fashioned trunk is just the thing; so is a well-made wooden chest. A wooden box will do if the cover fits and can not slip off. Cardboard boxes are not much good."

The best insecticide, according to Miss Griswold, is paradichlorobenzene, sometimes called "paradi" or P-B-D for short. It comes in crystal form and is inexpensive. Since it forms a gas that is heavier than air, it must be placed above the articles to be fumigated.

"First, pack the clothing in the trunk, then put about one-fourth pound of paradichlorobenzene on top of the clothing. The crystals can be scattered about if desired. The easiest way is to tie the crystals in a piece of old muslin, but don't tie the bag too tightly. When the supply in the bag gets low, put in some more crystals. Always have some paradichlorobenzene in the trunk.

"If you plan to be away all summer, put more 'paradi' in the bag when clothing is packed away. A half pound together with the same amount of napthalene flakes is recommended. The clothing will then be safe for several months.

Attorney Crane Seeks Convention Berth

fraternity, being past District Deputy Grand Master of Steuben County, member of the R. A. M. and Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. In addition he has been a member of the Odd Fellows, vice president for four terms of the Steuben County Bar Association, member of several of the committees of the Steuben and State Bar Associations. He served as president of the Syracuse University Alumni Association for Steuben County for four years.

His legal talents has been sought by several towns and school districts in Steuben County and he is still serving as counsellor for several of them. He negotiated the bond issues for the schools in Addison, Woodhull and Jasper. At the present time he is serving as president of the Advertising club of Addison, of which he is a charter member.

With this background of 33 years of civic and legal activity, Mr. Crane announced his candidacy for member of the constitutional convention.

Mr. Crane, in an interview, stated he received assurance of support from a large section of Steuben County including all classes of people from top to bottom. He also stated that from a question of party obligation he feels he is entitled to this honor.

"Much has been said about the $2,500 salary connected with this position", he said, "but I cannot emphasize too strongly there is no financial gain to any person who has a business. No one is able to estimate the time the convention will run and there are no emoluments other than the $2,500. Whoever is elected will be a financial loser.

"But there is a real opportunity for service to the state. My 33 years of practice in all the courts involving close contacts with all classes of people and business qualifies me for the position as delegate to the state constitutional convention.

"One of the major problems that comes to my mind will be the attempt by the Democratic party to redistrict the state as to senate and assembly districts to take part from the rural districts what little representation we now have. For instance, their effort may result in taking one member of assembly from Steuben County. Steuben County is essentially a rural county and it is large enough and has sufficient population to be represented in the assembly by two men.

"We must not be further controlled by cities and especially New York City. If nominated and elected I will use my best efforts for the benefit of the whole state. And I have no doubt of my ability to cope with situations as they arise in the convention in a straightforward, honest, intelligent and patriotic state of mind".

"Clyde E. Shults and Benjamin DeWitt, both able lawyers of Hornell have also announced their candidacies, I understand. Either of these men will make an excellent candidate should the people of Steuben County decide in favor of either of them"

THE MILK PARADE

The "push milk" campaign, now being carried on by 5,500 chain, vareity and drug stores throughout the country in an endeavor to assist dairy farmers in disposing of heavy seasonal supplies of fluid milk, is being widely aided and publicized by farm cooperative organizations. Thus, in a recent editorial, the Dairymen's League News, official publication of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association of New York, a pioneer co-op in its field, says: "This is the first time so far as we know that retail people have engaged in a national campaign to definitely increase the consumption of milk . . . Dairy farmers can help greatly by observing the stores in their communities which are taking part in this campaign and showing their appreciation for such fine support."

The milk campaign is similar to other campaigns, actual and projected, carried on by organized merchandisers—independent as well as chain. It is particularly fitting that large-scale merchandising units should work with cooperative organizations representing producers. Both co-ops and organized retailers operate on principles of great similarity. Both use mass production and distribution methods to reduce overhead and in-between costs. Both perform vital services for the consumer as well as their own members. The work now being carried on by these stores is definitely in the public interest.

BRASS TACKS For POULTRY RAISERS

By BURTON P. THARP

Growing Pullets

Too many flock owners think that if they get their chicks through the first three or four weeks without heavy mortality they can give them less care without serious consequences. While it is true that the first three weeks are very difficult as compared to the other ages it is also true that the owner needs to watch his flock carefully and take the best care of it if he expects the best results.

In order to have pullets laying in September and October when egg prices are usually high, careful planning is necessary as well as good care. Many farm flocks pick up most of their living except for a little grain but are slow to pay for the grain. They seldom are able to lay until they are seven or more months old. A healthy pullet which has had good feed, water and care can lay in less than five months. Even the heavy breed pullets lay in five months or less.

As soon as the young chicks reach an age or development such that the pullets can be told from the cockerels it is advisable to separate them. The surplus cockerels can be started on a feeding program for broilers and the pullets will not be crowded, and being by themselves can be more carefully watched and built into better layers.

If the young cockerels are confined to a relatively small space, they cannot run off the flesh and fat the owner wishes them to put on. At the age of ten weeks the broilers should weigh two pounds or more, depending on the kind of feed and care they have received.

Range shelters are a great help in the building of fine pullets. The shelters are easy to construct being simply frames similar to small chicken coops except that wire covers them instead of siding. The roofs are built with the eaves quite low giving protection from driving storms.

CCC Boys Seriously Injured in Truck Crash

head and body before any warning could be shouted. Some fifty feet from the zone of peril the shouts halted the driver and pandemonium reigned. The bodies piled on top of each other amidst pools of blood and moans of pain. Screams broke out from civilian onlookers and tourists held their eyes to hide from the mass of blood.

Most of the mentioned casualty list were totally unconscious. The remainder of men in the company responded to the call of mercy. All available men, physically fit, rushed to the aid of the injured carrying them to the safety of the nearby grass. Passing cars were commandeered and the victims were hurriedly loaded aboard. Undershirts and all available wearing apparel were ripped from the bodies of the uninjured for use as bandages and tourniquets. The civilian bystanders rendered every possible assistance by administering first aid and giving their private cars as conveyance to the nearby hospitals.

Arriving first at the hospital were the most seriously injured Nagel, Meeghan and Hagen. Your correspondent and Louis Patasso were hurriedly giving first aid in the best manner possible, to no avail—the victims remained unconscious. Upon arrival at the hospital the nurses and doctors prepared for emergency operations—summoning a priest and all available surgeons.

Upon notice that seven more patients were on their way to the hospital, emergency surgeons were hurriedly summoned to care for the victims.

The driver of the truck in which the accident occurred is totally absolved of any negligence in the matter.

In an hours time, however, true to the army tradition, the remainder of the caravan moved onward to their destination in Oxford. All grim-faced, square-jawed soldiers of fortune, yet soft, merciful heroes at heart, willing and ready to give their very life in an effort to preserve the life of another mortal.

CAVEMAN HOMES

A stirring vision of things to come was evoked recently by one of the chief figures in the American home construction industry, when B. G. Dahlberg of Chicago, pointed out that the majority of Americans still live under essentially "caveman conditions" insofar as protection from the hazards of dust, smoke, temperature extremes and noise are concerned. The point of the statement was that there is still a vast horizon for progress and vast opportunities for American industry in raising the housing standards of our population.

"STUDYING"

The Congress calendar these days report "studying" of local wage and hour legislation, railroad, flood control, building dirigibles, the WPA and a farm program. That may be noted as an improvement since for the past five months the principal object has been "reforming" the Supreme Court—the one out of three constitutional branches of the Government that always remains "constitutional".

all the Lewis law of rule or ruin. And they are able to visualize what would happen to the village of Elkland if the tannery owners make good their announced intentions of quitting the town before knuckling down to Lewis. Because they see the prospect of a ghost town with empty houses and deserted stores the intelligent men and women of Elkland have taken a stand against these organizers.

Yet it is all up to the workers in the Elkland Tannery. What is the calibre of their minds? Have they brains of sheep, and will they be easily led to cut down the bridge which leads to their filled bread basket? Will a majority of them listen to the soap bubble pleadings of the Communist rabble which does Lewis' organization work? Or will they remember the days of depression which still exists in many communities, and recall they had work and their families an honest living because the tannery kept open?

Seaway of No Benefit To American Farmers

Construction of the St. Lawrence seaway would not benefit the American farmers, but "it will take money from their pockets," in the opinion of the Chicago Tribune. It says, editorially:

"The movement of corn into Chicago throws light on the wisdom of the expenditure of several hundred million dollars for the construuction of the St. Lawrence seaway for the benefit of Canada. No grain is moving out of the United States these days, though Canada is still a large exporter.

"If the St. Lawrence seaway is built it will not help the farmers of the Central West and the Northwest, because, unlike the Canadian farmers, they will have little to ship on it. If we continue to import corn from the Argentine and South Africa the seaway will actually lower the price the corn-belt farmers receive for their grain.

"The seaway is supposed to be in the farmers' interest. When the project was first proposed, just after the war, freight rates were high and there was a shortage of ships and freight cars for the movement of grain into export.

"Meanwhile our farmers have lost their European market, and they are beginning to lose their home market for corn. That being so, no one can think of the seaway any longer as a benefit to the American farmers."

Occupations of women in the Virgin Islands are varied and include teaching, nursing, and domestic service as well as coaling of ships by hand, and sugar cane cultivation.

PASSES AWAY

Rachelle Birdsall Spencer, widow of the late Dr. Charles W. Spencer DDS died at her home in Sidney Saturday, June 26 at 3 A. M.

Mrs. Spencer was the youngest daughter of Henry H. and Rachel E. Birdsall, late of Addison. She was born in the town of Erwin. After attending the schools of this section she attended Ingham University at LeRoy, N. Y. She married Dr. Charles W. Spencer of Afton. They moved to Bainbridge where he practiced dentistry for several years. Some time later they moved to Sidney where she has since resided. She is survived by two nephews R. H. B. Landers of Sidney and Maurice B. Landers of New York.

Funeral services were held from St. Paul's Church, Sidney, Tuesday afternoon at 2 P M. The Rev. L. W. Steele officiating. Interment was in Sidney.

MILK PRODUCERS MEET

A mass meeting of the milk producers of New York State is being called for July 3 in Boonville. Elmer Gleasman secretary of the Oneida County Farmers Union is calling the meeting and it is predicted that over 8,000 producers will attend the meeting.

NEWSWRITERS EXEMPT

Pennsylvania newsmen have the same status as New York State newswriters in that they do not have to reveal the sources of information on news stories. This is a protection from dictatorial courts and other groups. They now have the same status as doctors, lawyers, and clergymen.

Astronomy For Boy Scouts

Regulus is one of the bright suns of the universe; it is estimated that it throws out 1,000 times as much light as our sun, but its distance from the earth is so great that it requires 162 years for its light to come to us. It is said to be many times brighter than Sirius, but it appears to have only one-thirteenth the brightness of that star, because of its great distance. It is really a great telescopic triplet. The naked eye can see only one star, but the telescope and spectroscope resolve it into three great suns.

Regulus is easily found as it is located in the constellation Leo and is sometimes called Cor Leonis, the Lion's Heart, but some astronomers call it Alpha Leonis. The position of this star was found by the Babylonians more than 4,000 years ago. It was at that time in longitude 119, while it is now more than 148 degrees. It can be observed in both winter and summer, and is visible the first half of the night for about two-thirds of the year.

This star is of unusual interest because of the fact that the November meteors, or Leonids, seem to approach the earth from a point a few degrees north of it.

Some of us who were born before there were any Boy Scouts are very sorry that we had no one to teach about the beauties of nature. A knowledge of the stars, the structure of the earth in geology; a familiarity with the trees, the flowers, the birds and the wild animals, make all of life more interesting, and add to our happiness as we go through life.

Our earth becomes a heaven below,
With joys which Nature yields,
Of glories which about us glow
In stars and trees and fields.

Steuben Farmers Test New Crops and Methods

Field trials of improved varieties of grain and forage crops, and experiments in pasture improvement, the control of diseases and comparisons of new varieties of potatoes are being conducted this summer on half a hundred farms by the Steuben County Farm Bureau.

Comparisons are being made for instance of Ithacan, Lenroc, and Upright oats on the farms of Archie Sherer, Cameron, G. W. Tucker, Campbell, Frank Strobel, Cohocton, and F. and M. Kane, Addison.

Ned VanKeuren of Bradford, Richard Stowell, Lindley, Grant Stone of Cameron Mills and Francis Foster of Wheeler have plantings of a new variety of ensilage corn No. 29-3. Frank Ranger of Hornell has a plot of Yorkwin wheat.

Soy beans are being grown for grain on the farm of Sherman Honeyman of Mt. Washington. Several varieties are being grown for hay by George Wallace, Atlanta, Robert Plaisted, Canisteo, and Frank Crandall of Cameron has several varieties to be ensilaged.

Fertilizer Studies

The effect of applications of sulphate of ammonia to pasture and meadow seeds is being observed on the farms of H. R. Sanford, Savona, Deyo Van Wormer, Cohocton Kenneth Bowen, Towlesville, and Archie Sherer, Cameron.

Muck areas of New York state once produced vast quantities of lettuce of the leafy type, have lost the market to iceberg lettuce produced in the irrigated sections of California. In an attempt to develop varieties of iceberg adapted to local conditions, plantings of a score of different strains have been established in the muck lands operated by Will Brown of Arkport, Charles Pickell, Wayland, and Barre Wood of Wheeler.

Nineteen varieties of potatoes including importations from foreign countries are being grown by Leonard Drake of Prattsburg. Observations of growth, resistance to summer heat and diseases will be made thruout the growing season, and yield comparisons at harvest.

Other investigations with potatoes include a trial of fertilizer application to sod on the Kenneth Bowen farm at Towlesville, and the storage temperature of seed at Aden Ingalls' farm, Fremont.

Investigate Potato Diseases

The control of yellow dwarf, a serious disease of potatoes in western New York, is under investigation and plots for this purpose have been established on a number of farms scattered thruout the potato belt. On the farm of Claud Cornue at Avoca there is a planting of potato seedling varieties developed by the Cornell plant breeders.

About a third of the total land area of Steuben county, more than 300,000 acres, is in permanent pasture. For the purpose of developing these vast natural resources, the effect of fertilizing of various meth ods of seeding, of mowing are being studied on a score of farms.

Steuben county farmers will be informed of the results of these tests and demonstrations in tours to be held during the summer, and the results will be presented at the winter meetings.

BORDEN

A picnic dinner was served on the lawn to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Fay Herrington and children of Orr Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Baker and children, Mrs. Forest Herrington and son Llewellyn, Mrs. William Russ and children, all of Addison; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoppe daughter Lillian of Borden. A large birthday cake made an attractive center piece.

Leslie Resigns Job at Helm of Milk Publicity

Albany, July 1—A few minutes before H. V. Noyes of Kenwood took the oath of office as Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, Harold D. Leslie submitted to Acting Commissioner William S. Dunn his resignation as Director of the Bureau of Milk Publicity.

Mr. Leslie's resignation is effective July 15. He has been elected unanimously as general secretary of the Springfield, Mass., Chamber of Commerce.

Bang's Disease Tests Begin in July

The New York State Legislature has appropriated the sum of $300,000 which will be used by the State Department of Farms and Markets to take blood tests of cattle in a campaign against Bang's abortion disease. Rejected animals will be appraised at their market value and indemnities paid inthe same amounts as for tubercular cattle. These tests are expected to begin in July.

State Motorists Seek License Reduction

New York State auto clubs are interested in legislation to be proposed at the coming legislative sessions relative to reducing tax fees for auto tags. The objections to payment of the present fees is owing to the large sums diverted from auto taxation to other state purposes than highway building. Motorists feel they should not be paying taxes for other governmental units, according to objectors to the present form of taxation. The auto clubs and united groups of car owners have in mind a flat fee of $3.00 per year for license plates. It is believed this fee will counteract the four-cent gasoline tax now being charged.

RESULTS

It wasn't the Galeton, Germania and South Branch railroad, but the Hillsboro and Northwestern, four miles in length, that supplied one of James J. Hill's favorite stories. Mr. Hill, railroad empire builder got a letter from the "President" of the H. & N. W. containing passes and asking for reciprocity on all the Hill lines. Mr. Hill didn't rise to the bait and dictated a letter saynig that he knew every railroad in this world but had never even heard of the Hillsboro and Northwestern. Back went a letter pronto, containing a few pointed remarks about the stuffed-shirt vanity of men who thought they were too big to notice little fellows, and ending: "I must admit, Mr. Hill, that your railroad is considerably longer than mine, but it isn't one damn bit wider". The pass came through by return mail.

'37 State Fair Open to Public Day and Night

Albany, July 1—New York's 1937 State Fair at Syracuse, September 5 to 11, will present day and night spectacles to delight crowds which Dr. Albert H. Brown, director of the Exposition, confidently believes will surpass all New York State Fair attendance records.

"The Night Fair will accomplish at least two main objectives", Dr. Brown said. "It will permit the attendance of persons who because of their employment are unable to visit the Fair in the daytime, and it also will offer spectacular entertainment for the day-time visitor who stays on the grounds for the Night Fair".

Featured attractions of the Night Fair will be a rodeo in front of the grandstand, the Horse Show in the Coliseum, fireworks, band concerts, circus acts, military drills and the midway.

Many of the exhibit buildings will be open to visitors during the early hours of each evening, an innovation which Dr. Brown said was received favorably last year.

The rodeo will be staged in real western style with bucking broncos, cowboys, steer roping, bareback riding, and other Wild West rodeo sports. Indians with their own band and trick riders will take part in the rodeo each night.

The Horse Show, already one of the leading exhibitions of its kind in the East, will feature some of the best horses, riders and drivers in the country. It will be a colorful display of horsemanship, Dr. Brown promised.

Five new exhibition buildings will be opened for the 1937 Fair. They are the new Horticultural Building, the Pure Foods Bulding, the Farm Machinery Building, the Dog Show Building and the addition to the Women's Building.

Livestock Marketing Receives Attention of Steuben Dairymen

The marketing of livestock was studied by 150 Steuben county farmers who attended last Wednesday the third annual tour to the Buffalo Stock Yards, and visited other points of interest in the metropolis of western New York.

Guests for the day of the Livestock Producers Co-operative Commission Association and the Buffalo Stock Yards Company, the farmers were given a demonstration of how livestock is graded and sold.

New York state lambs are preferred to those produced in other sections, according to J. F. Roberts, sheep salesman of the Livestock Producers. He said too that sheep can be grown and finished as cheaply in New York as other sections of the United States.

R. D. Foley, veal salesman, recommended the finishing of veal calves. Especially when milk is cheap he stated it is profitable to grow out veal calves, rather than to send them to market in a young and immature condition.

Other points of interest visited by the party were the Passenger and Express Terminal of the New York Central Railroad, the Museum of Science and the Municipal Airport. The party traveled in five large busses and several private cars.

Diversification in livestock farming on the part of Steuben county farmers is indicated in the fact that 630 have made this tour in 1935, 1936 and this year. Apparently dairymen are considering the production of sheep, hogs and beef animals in addition to milk production as a means of increasing their income, and diversifying their business.

The members of the party from this vicinity were Leon Andrews, George Tompkins, Bert Simons, Frank Young, M. H. Morse, C. A. Stewart, Burdette Beers, Mord Smith.

St. Catherine's Parish House Needs Repairs

Repairs are needed in St. Catherines parish house, according to the Rev. Patrick Kelly, newly installed pastor. These repairs have been needed several months in his opinion, but owing to Father Moffett being ill and Father McKay being administrator, the work was not done. Father Kelly issued an invitation to the parishioners to visit the house Sunday morning, to enable him to meet them and also that they might see the house. This will be a matter for the trustees, August Vona and Thomas Kane, Sr. to discuss with the parishioners.
